Aesthetic Enhancement

Addison Reserve Country Club in Delray Beach, an exclusive golf and tennis community of 718 luxury single-family homes, is pleased to announce the completion of its newly renovated award-winning golf courses. As part of the recent $18 million Clubhouse expansion and renovation project, the golf courses have undergone extensive fairway and rough improvements such as new turf and aesthetic enhancements, including the construction of an elaborate waterfall that will be lit by night as its centerpiece.

Originally designed by renowned golf course architect Arthur Hills, the three, 9-hole championship courses feature lush native vegetation, flowering foliage and sparkling lakes capturing the essence of South Florida and further enhancing the golf experience at Addison Reserve. The overall renovation has improved course playability as the new Celebration Turf provides a much denser and more durable playing surface. The Golf Pro Shop has also been updated and now offers a first-of-its-kind "e-ssential Golf Shop" online virtual store through the Addison Reserve system. The program allows members to order merchandise carried in the Pro Shop in the appropriate size or color preference should the item(s) not currently be in-stock at the Club's member discount pricing.

Renovated by Kipp Schulties Golf Design, Inc., of Jupiter, FL, the three 9-hole courses – Redemption, Trepidation and Salvation – provide a challenging experience featuring a breathtaking backdrop to the elegantly appointed homes in the nineteen private village enclaves of this unique community.

Redemption, with its slightly shorter length, offers the chance to win back a few squandered strokes. The ninth hole on Redemption is somewhat of an equalizer hole in that the longer hitter will likely use a shorter club off the tee so the shorter hitter may find an opportunity, with a delicate approach, to win the match. Trepidation starts out slow much like the steady climb at the start of the roller coaster, and then it twists, turns and ultimately descends on the ninth green. Salvation, whose renovation will be completed in summer 2012, has numerous lakes that players are challenged to avoid.

Addison Reserve is a premiere golf and tennis community of 718 luxury homes. Recognized as a Platinum Club of America 5-Star Private Club and Emerald Club Award recipient, Addison Reserve Country Club is located in charming Delray Beach, Florida.
